Uncovering a Steamy Past

Jiffy Steamer traces its roots back to 1940. Gone with the Wind was the movie and Frank Sinatra, the voice. Franklin Delano Roosevelt was preparing to run for a third term. Most everyone of that era wore a hat. Stretching, shaping and blocking your fedora over a steaming kettle was common. This is where the idea was born: a better way to steam hats "back into shape in a jiffy." Shortly after 1940, the company was organized and the Jiffy Steamer Model J-1 was patented. Jiffy Steamer knew the invention was good for more than steaming hats, so a hose attachment and steam head were added. The new Jiffy Steamer offered a revolutionary solution to an age-old problem of the clothing industry... removing wrinkles efficiently. Today, the multi-generational company remains family-owned and operated.

Jiffy Steamer Company, LLC is known around the globe, and is backed by over 1,000 dealers in the United States alone.

The dozens of Jiffy Steamer models can be found almost everywhere, from the commercial garment trade, to residential markets, in the pages of high-end mail order catalogs, in businesses that cater to the travel industry as well as in other specialty markets. The history of the Jiffy Steamer is filled with the promise and desire to harness the power and magic of steam.

Why Steam?

The Jiffy Steamer outperforms the alternatives and is up to five times faster than ironing. Wrinkles become smooth in an instant without scorching even the finest materials. You can flatten hard-to-reach places with steam where an iron could not get close. From hats, wigs, clothing, drapes, wallpaper, upholstery or even carpet, Jiffy's compact and portable design is easy to handle and economical to use. Using our products could not be easier: simply fill the steamer with ordinary tap water, turn it on and in no time you'll have the power to steam almost anything.

Regardless of the Jiffy Steamer model you select, you can rest assured that it's the best built steamer available and is engineered to last. Stainless steel, die cast aluminum and brass and high-impact engineered polymers are just some of the materials that go into manufacturing a Jiffy Steamer. We put only the finest components and quality workmanship into our products so that they will provide years of service.

That's why Jiffy Steamers enjoy an excellent reputation among the discriminating buyers of the commercial marketplace. So, whether you are a technician operating a large industrial shop, a world-class traveler or a homeowner looking for that personal professionalism, you'll quickly come to depend on Jiffy Steamer's quality for dozens of tasks.
